

EEA

The European Evangelical Alliance - stronger together, weaker apart

The European Evangelical Alliance (EEA) is primarily a network of national Evangelical Alliances across Europe. It is closely related to its sister organisation, The European Evangelical Mission Association (EEMA).

The EEA's threefold function is to:

- be a neutral space for relationship building between Evangelicals across Europe
- be a platform for common action (for example, in prayer, in evangelism and mission, and in socio-political action)
- be a representative voice for Europe's evangelicals (for example in the European Union)

Who can belong?

Membership is for National Evangelical Alliances, and for Pan-European interdenominational evangelical Mission Agencies
