

Large Churches Mission Forum

A forum for those entrusted with leading mission programmes in churches with 500+ regular participants

The Large Churches Mission Forum brings together mission leaders from large churches (over 500 regular participants) to consider issues that are particularly relevant to churches with large budgets, a large number of mission workers and a large number of staff. Meetings take place four times a year at All Souls Church, Langham Place, London. Any large church can ask for an invitation for one of their mission leaders.

The purpose of this forum is:

To promote friendship, support, encouragement and prayer between those entrusted with leading significant mission programmes in large churches, in order to facilitate 'good practice' in global mission, especially in the areas of -

- care of mission partners
- nurture of vocation before, during and after mission service
- administration
- publicity, education and information sharing
